

- People with compromised immune systems;
- People with a disability, if you have received medical advice to take extra care during COVID-19.

How many people can gather together?

You can now have 20 visitors to your household at any one time. Physical distancing should still be followed; each person must have 2 square metres to themselves or stay 1.5 metres away from another person.

Otherwise you can gather in outdoor spaces in groups of up to 500 and indoor spaces in groups of up to 250 (depending on the size of the venue and whether physical distancing is possible).

What about family in other houses, can we visit each other?

A 'household' includes those who live permanently in the same home.

You can have up to 20 visitors in your household at any one time.

However, even as the restrictions around visiting and interacting with other people change, you should still try to stay 1.5 meters away from each other where possible.

What if I am homeless?

If you are required to self-isolate and you are experiencing homelessness or staying in overcrowded housing, you may be deemed in need of emergency accommodation.

You can seek assistance for emergency accommodation and assistance grants by contacting the Public Hotline on 1800 671 738 or Housing Connect on 1800 800 588.

What if I don't feel safe in my home?

Government directions do not stop you from leaving your home if you are unsafe. If you don't feel safe in your home, you may be eligible for a rehousing program, flexible support packages or other support.

A variety of community services are still open and may be able to offer you support over the phone, by email or by video call.

When do I have to self-isolate or quarantine?

Quarantine means staying away from people if you may have been exposed to COVID-19 but have not tested positive. This may mean that you are in quarantine for a period of time to make sure you do not develop COVID-19.

You must quarantine for 14 days if you have:

- arrived in Australia from overseas;
- arrived in Tasmania from interstate;
- been diagnosed with COVID-19; or
- been in close contact with a confirmed COVID-19 case.

Any person who has spent time in high-risk areas specified as an 'Affected Region' or 'Affected Premises' in the 14 days prior to arrival in Tasmania must seek prior approval to enter Tasmania.

If you are an essential traveller or eligible maritime crew you may be exempt from the 14 day quarantine. Contact the Health Department or COVID information lines for more information.

If you have been told to quarantine, you must stay at your home or government-arranged accommodation at all times. The only reasons you can leave your home or accommodation is to receive medical care or for essential tasks.

If you, or someone in your house, is in quarantine then you cannot have any visitors. Only people that permanently live in your home should be in your home.

Self-isolation is required where you have tested positive for COVID-19 and must stay home to prevent the possible spread to other people, until directed otherwise. This means that you:

- must not leave your home unless in an emergency;
- must not go to public places;
- must not let visitors into your home.

Can I use my car?

- You can use your car. You don't have to physically distance whilst in the car, which means that you don't have to be 1.5 metres away from the other person in the car.
- You can still receive or give driving lessons.

Can I care for Elders?

You can give care and social support to Elders in their home. If you do, you should try to stay 1.5 metres away from the other person where possible.

Previously, visits to residential aged care facilities were not allowed except for very limited reasons (providing end-of-life support or essential care to someone with a medical condition). Visits are still subject to restrictions, to protect the elderly from high-risk transmission of COVID-19.

A person in an aged care facility can receive visits of up to two people for the purposes of care and support.

People should not visit any residential aged care facility if they:

- have been interstate or overseas in the past 14 days;
- are displaying symptoms of respiratory infection or have a temperature higher than 37.5 degrees;
- have had contact within the past 14 days with a person diagnosed with COVID-19 or reasonably suspected of having COVID-19;
- have not had a valid influenza vaccination.

Additional visits, and exemptions to the above restrictions, may be permitted for the purpose of end of life support or if requested by the facility to provide essential support to a resident to reduce distress or confusion as a result of a medical condition.

Can we still get together outside for community events?

Gatherings limits are now determined by the density of the area. There can be a maximum of 250 people for an undivided space in an indoor venue or 500 people in an undivided outdoor space.

There should be 1 person per 2 square metres. Venues must comply with this rule and a smaller venue cannot fit the maximum number of people in the space if physical distancing cannot be followed.

What about sorry business and funerals? Funerals and sorry business are subject to the same restrictions as indoor/outdoor venues.

Other ceremonies are subject to the same restrictions as indoor/outdoor venues. You should still practice physical distancing and try and keep 1.5 metres away from one another.

Can I travel interstate for work or recreation?

Visitors from interstate can travel to Tasmania, but must comply with all border checks and restrictions upon entry. This includes providing documentation, being placed in isolation until cleared, or being required to quarantine for 14 days.

Visitors from Victoria will not be allowed in to Tasmania unless they are essential travellers. People who arrive from Victoria will be required to leave or quarantine until they are able to leave.

Exceptions apply for residents of Tasmania who are returning to Tasmania from interstate. Generally, all returning residents must undergo 14 days of quarantine and comply with directions from authorised officers.

Areas within Tasmania are unrestricted, but you should avoid travelling if you feel unwell.

What if I can't pay my rent?

If you have lost your job, or you are making less money because of COVID-19, you should speak with your landlord as soon as possible about options. You may be eligible for rental assistance or be protected from eviction.

You can still be evicted for other reasons, like damaging your property. Landlords are not allowed to increase rent until at least 30 September 2020.

If you get an eviction notice, you should call the Tasmanian Aboriginal Community Legal Service on 1800 064 865.

B. Police enforcement powers

What powers do the police have?

It is an offence not to comply with the directions made by the Tasmanian Government. If you are in breach of a public health direction, the police may issue you with an infringement notice or may give you a summons.

If the police issue you with an infringement notice, you must pay that fine within 28 days unless you decide to contest the fine in the Magistrates Court. If you receive an infringement notice and don't do anything about it, you will receive an enforcement order which will add $84 on top of the fine, and the offence will be included on your criminal record.

If you are given a summons, this means that you will need to go to Magistrates' Court at a later date to have your matter dealt with. If the Court finds that you were in breach of a public health direction, you may face a maximum penalty of $16,800 and/or six months in prison.

Despite the relaxation of restrictions, it is still an offence to not comply with the directions.

If you are required to self-isolate

Police will also be performing check-ins with those who must be in quarantine or self-isolation.

If police have reasonable grounds to believe you are not doing the 14-day quarantine, they have the power to arrest you. If you do not comply with a quarantine direction, you could face a fine for up to $16,800 or up to six months in jail.

What do I need to do if the Police speak with me?

A police officer can require you to give your name, address and other information they need if they think you may have breached an order, or you are the person in charge of the place where the breach happened.

You can film your interaction with police in a public place if you are concerned about your rights.

Can I appeal a summons or seek a reduction or waiver if I can't afford to pay?

Yes, if you don't think you should have received the summons or are unable to pay, there are several options:

- If you don't think you should have received the summons, you can explain your reasons when the matter is heard in the Magistrates' Court. You should seek legal advice first. Information about free legal services is contained in Part E, below.
- If the Court gives you a fine that you cannot afford to pay, you can:
  - ask the Court to reduce or waive the fine
  - contact the Monetary Penalties Enforcement Service (tel: 1300 366 766) and ask to either:
    - pay the fine in instalments; or
    - apply for a Monetary Penalty Community Service Order, where you work under supervision to pay off the fine.

C. Restrictions on movement into Aboriginal communities

These restrictions do not apply in Tasmania. Refer to general restrictions on gatherings in Part A.

D. Businesses

All businesses and workplaces are now permitted to operate. All businesses that operate must comply with the minimum COVID-19 safety standards and record this in a COVID-19 safety plan. Business operators that do not comply may face fines and penalties, including imprisonment.

Businesses that operate are required to develop a COVID-19 Safety Work Plan to implement measures which will manage the risks of transmission of COVID-19 at their workplace. All businesses that have reopened will need to be able to demonstrate compliance with the 'Minimum Standards' developed by the government.

These standards require businesses to ensure that:

- all people at the business must stay 1.5 metres apart where possible;
- the premises and all supplies and equipment must be regularly cleaned and disinfected;
- people at the business (including staff) must observe appropriate hygiene measures (such as hand washing); and
- staff must be given information, training and supervision to comply with hygiene measures.

There are limits on the number of people who may be present at a business. Only one person is permitted per 2 square metres, up to a maximum of 250 people for an indoor space or 500 people outdoors. All people count towards this number, including business owners, employees, volunteers, children and babies.

A limited number of businesses are exempt from this rule, including medical facilities, educational institutions, childcare facilities, and services that support disadvantaged people.

Some specific rules apply to certain types of businesses, including:

- licensed premises that serve alcohol for consumption on premises (such as restaurants, cafes, bars, hotels or pubs) must only serve people who are sitting down;
- standing activities like darts, pool, and karaoke (except dancing) are now permitted in licensed venues. However, patrons cannot be served alcohol whilst standing;

- dancing is not permitted at venues where food and alcohol is consumed. Dancing is only permitted when it is pre-arranged, held in a separate room to where food and alcohol is consumed and contact information is recorded (for example, a dance class in a community hall).
- indoor sport, recreation and exercise facilities must have at least one employee present at all times while the facility is being used. This means that gyms cannot operate on an 'unstaffed' basis.

E. Who to call for help or information

For up-to-date information, visit the Tasmanian Government COVID-19 website: https://www.coronavirus.tas.gov.au/. The website provides the latest data on cases and testing, advice on keeping yourself safe, and information on business restrictions.

You can also speak to someone for more information by calling the Public Health Hotline: 1800 671 738.

The Tasmanian Aboriginal Centre has also prepared video resources in palawa kani language about steps you can take to stay safe during the COVID-19 pandemic: <https://tacinc.com.au/stay-safe-at-home-with-palawa-kani/>

If you need to talk to someone about fines?

- Legal Aid Commission of Tasmania: call 1300 366 611

Updated 1 September 2020

This guidance sheet is not a substitute for legal advice. You should contact a lawyer for specific legal advice or referral.